Transition finance has key role to play in Kenya's climate fight change

2 October 2024

Globally, climate change is recognized as one of the most serious threats to humanity. The Paris Agreement, which was a global response to climate change, recognizes the need for adequate funds to finance the reduction of greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions and climate-resilient development. Dubbed 'transition finance', the funding needed for the transition to a low-carbon sustainable future is fundamental to the fight against climate change.

Kenya's Path to Circular Economy: The Hits and Misses in the Sustainable Waste Management Act

29 August 2023

The current global challenges posed by unsustainable consumption and waste generation underscore the pressing need for a transition toward a circular economy. This model prioritizes the reuse and regeneration of materials over the traditional linear model where natural resources are taken, transformed into products, and disposed of after use.

Why resignation should be the last resort for directors of companies in financial distress

23 November 2022

When a company is facing financial difficulty, one of the instinctive actions often taken by directors is to resign from their position. They do this in a bid to distance themselves from the failures of the company due to reputational damage and personal liability that may attach.

Public accounting officers cannot be glorified clerks

24 May 2022

In recent years, there have been a number of media reports about procurement malpractice and misuse of public funds by public officers entrusted with such duties. The reports tend to elicit a lot of public indignation and debate has often centered around who should be held accountable. On its part, the Government will argue that the institutions set up to deal with such malpractice are doing the best that they can. There are many examples of suspension or removal of implicated officials (including top officers) from office, freezing of assets and hefty fines, among others. However, this is unlikely to appease a public which is craving high profile convictions, the main complaint being that only the 'small fish' get netted for procurement crimes, with many of the more senior public officers seemingly walking away scot-free, or at worst, with a slap on the wrist.
