Japheth Mutisya is an Associate in the Projects, Energy, and Restructuring practice group at the firm. He advises on a wide range of matters in the energy and infrastructure sectors, and in public-private partnerships (PPP). His expertise includes conducting compliance reviews, legal due diligence, feasibility studies, drafting and negotiating transaction agreements, issuing legal opinions, and engaging regulators.

As part of the team, Japheth has experience working with diverse clients, including government entities, private sector players, and multinational corporations. He advises on complex projects aimed at fostering sustainable development and is skilled at navigating Kenya's legal and regulatory landscape, with a focus on aligning projects with local and international standards. Through his work, Japheth supports clients in achieving innovative energy solutions, efficient infrastructure development, and successful PPP initiatives.
